The decision of Vice-Chancellor Bacon in the action of The Colonial Bank v. WHINNEY is calculated to excite some apprehension as to the continuatice of this convenience. As summarised in the Economist the case was as follows: -In 1880 the notorious BLAKEWAY deposited with the Colonial Bank as security for advances to his firm, P. H. TROMAS & Co., 7,000 shares in the Forth Bridge Railway Company, together with a blank transfer, which the bank had authority to fill up. The shares had been paid for by a cheque of the firm. TROMAS & Co., and the firm also paid the amount of a call upon the shares. Oh the failure of the firm, the receiver served notice upon the Forth Bridge Railway Company and the Colonial Bank then brought an action to obtain a declaration that they were entitled to a valid charge on the shares for, the amount due to them by the firm.
